There are plenty of maternity boutiques, but I have had so many friends complain about spending a lot of money on clothes that they are going to wear for just a few months. There's a new website called Mine for Nine which offers maternity clothes to rent/borrow.

The clothing is brand new or gently used clothes for at least 75% off retail prices. Each piece of clothing is dry cleaned and inspected before it is shipped. You have the option to buy the clothing brand new at the full retail price, as long as it's still available. They have a selection of suits for work, pants, tops and evening gowns. Pricing is by the month, but you can keep it for as many months as you like without late fees. They even offer evening gowns, which is a slightly different rental policy. Monthly pricing is reasonable—seems like a lot of items were in the $20 to $30 range.
